

One frontend scales differently for the two workloads

All markers are measured; segments merely connect available points. N=1 is the shared historical baseline.
Historical balanced runs differ in HTTP/build policy: useful capacity references, not controlled frontend-count comparisons.